METEOR SEEN THIS SECTION BY CITIZENS

Flashes Across the Heavens Early Friday Morning

LANDS NEW MEXICO

Lorenzo Wirt Writes For The News Impression of Meteor

A meteor swept across the North Plains Friday morning at 6:07 o'clock which is said to be the largest seen in this section for many years. A number of Canyon citizens witnessed a part or all of the heavenly display, which was said to be gorgeous in proportions.

Lorenzo Wirt witnessed all of the spectacle, and was probably the only person who saw the meteor when it appeared, and viewed the entire sweep across the heavens. Mr. Wirt went to his typewriter after witnessing the spectacular event and wrote the following description for the News:

"This morning at 6:07 o'clock I was attracted by the sky suddenly lighting up as if it were day. I observed a burning meteor flying across the Northern sky at a terrific rate of speed. No doubt I saw the meteor immediately after it invaded the atmosphere, and it was exactly like a gigantic roman candle. It was emitting colored stars, and was making a 'Swish' sounding noise as it traveled. It started from the East and spent itself in the West by a discharge of colored stars which immediately turned black. Following this phenomena I noted an odor, similar to that of burning sulphur. The sky had a low ceiling of clouds and the meteor cut a path in this leaving a white streak, indicating its entire range of travel. Where it first started or at the beginning of the streak a highly concentrated light spot appeared. It's color was a sort of blue white resembling more the color of a mercury arc, than anything I have seen. It was much brighter than the white streaks in the East, where the sun was approaching. This white streak remained intact thirty minutes after the phenomena occurred."

Scientists from Denver have been studying the path of the meteor and are of the opinion that the large portion landed in the mountains of northern New Mexico.

A fragment was found on a ranch near Stratford by Ed Hart, who brought it to Amarillo. The rock weighed about four pounds, and was as hard as steel.

Dr. Joe Hill In Rotary Address of District Meet

Joe A. Hill, member of the Canyon Rotary Club, made the principal address Tuesday night at the inter-city Rotary meeting at Plainview, attended by more than 200 Rotarians and Rotary Anns from a dozen towns of the Plains.

Dr. Hill discussed the meaning of Rotary, and its place in the world today, and the service that it is rendering to humanity. The educational problems were discussed at length by the speaker, and thanks extended to the people of the Plains for the interest shown in the two colleges located in this section.

Andy Anderson of Ranger, district Governor of Rotary, closed the program with an invitation to the district meeting at San Angelo in May.

Among the Canyon delegation who attended the Plainview meeting were Mr. and Mrs. Joe Hill, Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Warwick, Mr. and Mrs. Irby Carruth, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Warren, Mr. and Mrs. Sylvester Ingham, Mr. and Mrs. Doug Shirley, Marvin Saddoris, Burt Newlin, Levi Cole, Albert Terry, Fred Wortham, Oscar Gano and Floyd Savage.

ATTENDED CONVENTION
Judge S. B. Orton and Commissioner W. E. Bennett returned Saturday from Wichita Falls where they attended the convention of County Judges and Commissioners. Judge Orton stated that it was the best convention that he has ever attended, and much profit was realized by those who attended.

W. C. Black was a business caller in Panhandle Tuesday.

Mayor C. R. Burrow Writes About School

Citizens Have Pride In Educational Plants of City

On the eve of the school election, April 1, is an appropriate time to call the attention of the citizens of Canyon Independent School District to a few matters concerning public education here.

Let us not forget the fact that Canyon is a school town. While other towns rely upon oil, upon railroad shops, or upon tourists for support, Canyon's very life blood in large measure pulsates from the continual influx of young people who come here to school. Whatever injures Canyon's schools injures her business, her churches, her homes, and ultimately the quality of her citizenship. Whatever causes these institutions to function more efficiently will likewise raise the quality of Canyon's institutions and citizenship. It is gratifying to know that the citizenship of Canyon realize these facts, as evidenced by the universal desire here that the college be not in any way handicapped in the service it is rendering to northwest Texas.

In our concern for the College just now, we are prone to overlook the fact that Canyon has another educational institution of which to be proud—the public school. Its buildings are new and in good state of repair; its faculty is well trained; and the morale of students, teachers, and administrators is excellent. Space does not permit a discussion of our school's many excellent and distinctive features.

As it appears to me as a layman the program of scientific testing of student achievement instituted by Superintendent Webb and elaborated under the administration of the present superintendent is noteworthy and is a feature of which any system would be proud. The results show that our institution in comparison with others in the fundamental subjects has a sound program. Other features, such as, home-making instruction, manual training, and public school music, available to every child of rich and poor alike in our school district, indicate that the people of Canyon have planned well for their children and that no child here regardless of whether his parents can pay for private instruction or not is to be denied an equal opportunity with all other children in coming into his birthright; namely, a chance to grow into a useful, respected, and cultured citizen.

MERCHANTS MUST GET IN ALL THEIR RELIEF ORDERS

Owing to new regulations going into effect immediately, all merchants and others holding orders signed by Judge S. B. Orton, and drawn against the relief committee are urged to get those orders to the Chamber of Commerce as soon as possible for payment.

New regulations go into effect not later than April 1 and it is the desire of the committee to get in all outstanding orders and make payment of same before then.

Fred E. Wortham, Secretary-Treasurer, Relief Committee.

McAfee Building Two Residences On Ranch

Two residences are being constructed on the Merry ranch northeast of the city for which C. R. McAfee recently traded. Mr. and Mrs. Ben Carlton Mead are building one house, while Charles McAfee Jr. is building the other. The Mead residence is in connection with an art studio which Mr. Mead is opening.

Charles McAfee is establishing a chicken ranch at his place.

Both residences are in the Palo Duro canyon.

Ruling Given In Regard to Liens On Seed Loans

Applicants for 1933 crop seed loans are required to secure waivers on all crops including wheat. However, landlords and lien holders may sign them with the notation "wheat excepted" thereby preserving their first liens on wheat crops. This will operate to give the Secretary of Agriculture a first lien on any or all crops grown in 1933 on land previously seeded to wheat and previously mortgaged.

W. H. Upchurch, County Agent.

Mr. Heller observed his 89th birthday last Friday. He is enjoying very good health in spite of his advanced age.

.28 Inch Rain Falls Here On Tuesday Evening

Canyon received a rain amounting to .28 of an inch Tuesday evening. The amount of moisture varied in different parts of the county, but seemed to be lighter around Canyon than elsewhere in the county. The downpour amounted to nearly an inch in both the north and south parts of the county. From Happy to Plainview the rain amounted to more than an inch.

This is the first moisture in this section since February 26, when .20 of an inch was shown by the register.

According to government records, this has been the driest three months period of January, February and March that this section has ever experienced.

Mr. Richmond comes to Canyon from Spearman where he has owned a cleaning and pressing plant the past four years. He has been engaged in the business eight years, and states that he is equipping this plant to offer all modern cleaning and pressing services. Mr. Richmond is a son-in-law of Rev. C. W. ## Senate Passes Bill for Summer Session

$24,500 Given W. T. In Senate Bill Passed Tuesday

The Senate passed on Tuesday an appropriation bill providing for the summer sessions of the Texas colleges. These appropriations were vetoed by Governor Sterling from the last appropriations bill, hence the necessity of passage at this time. The Senate agreed upon a bill providing for a 30% reduction in the amounts allowed all of the colleges for the past summer's work.

W. T. is allowed $24,500 for the coming summer, according to the bill passed Tuesday.

The House will now take up this appropriations matter.

The Regents for the State Teachers Colleges recently ordered that summer sessions be held in all of the colleges owing to the fact that so many teachers find it necessary to attend these summer sessions. Dr. J. A. Hill states that advertising matter for the coming summer session is being mailed out, and that he expects a good enrollment for the summer quarter.

The teachers colleges are the only institutions which have definitely planned summer sessions, but all others will make these plans if this appropriation is passed.

Last High School Debate of Season Here Saturday Nite

Canyon citizens will be given a final opportunity to hear the Canyon High School Debate team when they meet the Hereford High School team here next Tuesday evening. Appearing for the boys will be: Ogden Stroud and Joe Collins; those for the girls are: Kathryn Robinson and Armer Lee Greenfield.

The question for debate is "Resolved that one half of all state and local revenue be derived from sources other than taxes on tangible property."

DAIRYMEN IN ANNUAL MEET HELD FRIDAY

218 Feast at High School Gymnasium on Friday Night

G. FOOTE SPEAKS

W. H. Upchurch Is Toastmaster for the Banquet

The fifth annual banquet of the Randall County Dairymen's Association was attended Friday night by 218 men and women of Randall county. A large number were turned away who had not procured tickets in advance, owing to lack of room. The banquet was held in the gymnasium of the high school and the serving was done by the home economics department of the high school. A number of firms who are doing business with the dairymen made substantial donations to the banquet.

W. H. Upchurch, county agent, was toastmaster for the evening. He expressed the appreciation of the dairymen for the presence of so many business men and friends of the farmers of Randall county. Following the invocation by Rev. C. E. McKenzie, the banqueters stood in silence as a token of memory of Henry Ansley, who delivered the principal address of the association last year.

J. W. McCrery, president of the Association, was introduced by Mr. Upchurch and pledged his best efforts to a successful year among the dairymen of the county.

T. C. Thompson spoke briefly on the work of the association and the high citizenship of this section. He pledged the co-operation of Canyon business interests to the development of the dairy interest and farmers of the county.

During the banquet the Canyon Novelty orchestra furnished music which was greatly appreciated by the large audience.

Lewis Dodson, Dr. Primer and Mrs. Denson of the Amarillo Board of Health were introduced. This staff has supervision of the food products offered for sale in Amarillo.

Rev. E. Gaston Foote, pastor of the San Jacinto Methodist church made the principal address of the evening, discussing the subject, "What Are You Worth." The subject was introduced with a vein of humor that caught the audience and lead the listeners through a more serious consideration of the subject from the standpoint of the community, the family and the schools. "Is a man worth what he costs?" was a question raised and illustrations were drawn as to the cost of educating the Czar Nicholas and Abraham Lincoln; the former almost bankrupting a nation, while the latter who cost the nation nothing, yet saved it. "Neither is a man worth what he can earn," was illustrated from the lives in history. "The exact worth of a man is the difference between the amount of happiness after he is gone and before he came into the world," was the conclusion of the speaker. Right now a lot of yellow streaks are showing up; fear of inability to put it over, is the main cause. "The man is doing the most who is doing the best with what he has," sated the minister.

The contests are sponsored by the Texas Interscholastic League.

First Certified Seed Is Taken at Office of Agent

County Agent W. H. Upchurch states that he sold the first certified seed Saturday which has been placed in his office by the Chamber of Commerce for re-sale to the farmers. This seed is being sold to the farmers at cost in order to improve the quality of grain in the county. The Chamber of Commerce has been handling seed for several years, and an increased amount has been sold each year.

Mr. Upchurch is expecting a large part of the seed that he has on hand to be taken by the middle of April.

BEER AND PROHIBITION

Perhaps it is a good thing for prohibition that beer is to return in a few days. During all of the arguments by the antis for a repeal of the 18th amendment, they have loudly proclaimed their opposition to the return of the saloon. Even some so-called prohibitionists swallowed this bunk, and joined in the cry against the 18th amendment.

Now that beer is to return, the saloon will be opened in every state which does not prohibit it by local option statutes.

You are going to see a mighty sorry spectacle with the opening of the saloons. You are going to see men and women squandering the money for beer which they need to feed and clothe their children.

You are going to see more homes deserted by those who cannot pay rent or taxes, just for the privilege of paying millions of dollars into the coffers of the brewers.

You are going to see more starved women and children, who are deprived of food and clothing while the husband and father drinks the slop dispensed through the open saloon.

You are going to see drunken men and women, drunken boys and girls on the streets in ever increasing numbers.

This will be brought about by the beer bill passed allowing the wet states to sell the stuff without restrictions.

In the meanwhile, what is going to happen to legitimate business? Millions of dollars will be diverted from the regular trade channels to the saloons and brewers. Every line of legitimate business is going to pay its toll. Each merchant in the saloon town will be deprived of a rightful income.

The prospects are that we shall pay a terrible price for the purpose of raising a few taxes. But maybe it will awaken the people of the nation. Maybe those half baked prohibitionists who are calling the 18th amendment a failure, and have fallen in the anti trap will finally conclude that the repeal of the 18th amendment means the return of the saloon with all of its attending evils. Maybe those poor souls will be damned by the return of beer may finally awaken in the American people the purpose of the repeal, which is nothing more nor less than the return of the saloon, and the free flow of liquor. It will take a jolt to awaken the American people to the seriousness of the situation.

EDUCATION AND TAXES

Recently one of America's popular stimulating writers headed an article "A Child Can Grow Up Only Once."

People who advocate far-reaching quick changes in public education would do well to start their thinking from this statement. If tax reducing propagandists destroy by gross misrepresentation the intimate cooperative relation between teachers and other citizens which is necessary to carry on the task of education; if American ideals in education are abandoned by instituting tuition charges for education above the elementary school; if standards of teaching are lowered by filling positions in such a way as to help the local unemployment situation instead of filling them with the best possible teachers, the effects will be felt long after today's economic conditions are a memory. The effects will reach into generations beyond that of the children who are now having their one and only chance to grow up. Some of the effects will be poorer citizenship, less intelligent church membership, a lowered level of social life, and a people more prone to violence.

Many people are led to believe that their high state taxes are due to education, and selfish interests which do not desire widespread education or equitable taxing of their own great holdings are imposing such erroneous belief upon good people who honestly have the interests of youth and their country at heart. Such people need information to replace their misinformation or the youth of this generation will be robbed of its right "to grow up" properly, and progress toward social justice will be retarded or actually stopped.

Marvin Jones refused to take charge of the President's agricultural bill in the House of Representatives. Mr. Jones is chairman of the powerful agricultural committee of the House, and has studied for several years the agricultural conditions of this district as well as the nation as a whole. He has his own ideas about the situation. For one thing, he has seen the Hoover Farm Board throw in a rat hole $35,000,000 of the people's money. He sees the establishment of another such untried scheme, which may be as expensive to the American government. However, Marvin Jones did not oppose the President in this bill. He merely refused to accept the responsibility of passing the bill in the House. When the bill is passed, as likely it will be with Senate modifications, Jones will not be in the position of sponsoring an unworkable bill if this should be the fate of the President's scheme. It is a good politician who knows when to sidestep, and let the other fellow assume the responsibilities of untried schemes.

What a shame that the big bankers of the east who were trusted by the American people so implicitly should turn traitor to their trust. Wall Street has been condemned on general principles for years and years, and has been charged of robbing the people for its own benefit. Now the evidence is strictly against Wall Street. Hitherto the charges were vague, and largely made by people who take no trouble to ascertain facts in their charges. The President of the United States makes the charges. The bankers admit the facts. It is fortunate for the country that only a few bankers have proven to be dishonest and to have unloaded worthless securities on the people of the nation. The country bankers as a class have proven safe in their thinking and acting, although many were too optimistic in making loans during the good times.

Hitler has been given the power of dictator by the German government. It has been predicted for some time that such a move would be necessary to save Germany from disaster. The question is whether or not Hitler has the brain and the courage to save Germany. The persecution of the Jews shows a great weakness on his part. No nation has ever progressed far which persecuted its people on account of their religion. The Jews have been the favorite people for persecution since the days of Christ. Their success in business has been largely the cause of the opposition they have received. Religious opposition is the bitterest and most relentless of all, and is carried on largely by bigots, who have no particular religion of their own, but wish to parade their prejudices under the banner of self righteousness.

James E. Ferguson has taken a decided stand in favor of the sales tax, and devoted much space in the Ferguson Forum to a discussion of this tax. His position is that the ad valorem tax will never be repealed unless a sales tax is passed; that it is preposterous to think he would advocate a tax which would be against the interest of the poor people of the state, since he has always championed their cause. Mr. Ferguson realizes that it will be almost impossible to pass any sort of a tax producing measure at this session, no matter how badly the state needs more revenues. He believes the sales tax is the most equitable and the most easily collected. Interesting things are slated for legislative under the big dome at Austin.

Spring has been officially ushered in. The temperature in the mornings may not indicate that spring has arrived, but the calendar has set the date. This means that flowers and shrubs and trees will start their growth if not molested by stray chickens. Home owners in Canyon are paying out good hard-earned money to beautify their places. Owners of chickens must co-operate in keeping their fowls at home if the town as a whole is to profit by the expense of the individual home owner.

More power has been voted to President Roosevelt, and others will come as the result of bills now pending in Congress. Americans are not willing to admit that the democratic form of government is a failure, but they appreciate the fact that when there is need of action, it is better to centralize authority than to wait upon the slow moving legislative bodies of this form of government.

Get a set of 1933 license tags for your automobile if you expect to operate it after Saturday. With state highway patrolmen working out of Canyon daily, and local officers warned to arrest car owners not properly tagged, it will be expensive to attempt to drive without proper license. April 1st is the time limit for the new tags.

"Education is the victim of the tax dodgers," stated Supt. C. E. Davis of the Plainview Public Schools last week. If every one had been paying their just taxes all of the time, the schools would not be suffering today.

People who fail to make the best of what they have should remember that there are others waiting to take their places.

The cost of keeping a car depends on whether you keep it in the garage, in the road, or in debt.

THE GREAT AMERICAN HOME

Spring Grid Season Opened Last Week; "Big Shot" Williams at Helm

Captained by "Big Shot" Howard Williams, forty aspiring candidates for the 1933 Buffalo grid machine reported to Coach S. D. Burton March 21 for a six weeks spring training grind. Uniforms were issued and blocking, tackling, punting, and other important phases of the great national collegiate sport became the order of the day.

Williams has been star lugger for the Buffs since his freshman year and now possesses three "T's." Next year will be his fourth on a varsity squad. He was unanimously elected to fill the shoes of Ex-captain "Fatso" Bill McLendon at the expiration of the 1932 football season. The aggregation has shown much confidence in Williams and appears ready to follow the Big Boy in a conquest for 1933 honors.

Although the varsity had only seven points chalked up against it last fall in conference play, enough to rob it of a conference title, the forthcoming squad speaks in no modest terms of a more successful season in the offing. And the boys look good.

However, Burton is going to find gaps in the machine that will not be easily filled. Bill McLendon, Clovis, N. M., scrapping regular center credited with four years of admirable play, will graduate. He will be hard to replace. "Gallup" Ballangee, Canyon, said by many able critics to have been one of the greatest tackles to ever fell a W. T. foe, will also graduate. Likewise, Otis Burk, Rails, three year letterman at a wing position and quarterback, will leave a gap in the Maroon-White ranks.

There are, of course, talented reserve men who will step up to fill many a breach. Among these are Alvin Morgan, reserve quarterback who will make a strong bid for the job. "Hig" Higgins and John Walker, both lettermen, will be in the skirmish for Ballangee's berth. Ralph Poe, freshman center of last fall, will contend for the pivot position left vacant by the retiring captain—and will likely get it.

Also from the freshman squad comes such encouraging material as "Pud" Thompson (IV), Lacy, Groom, McGehee, Robinson, Lard, Moore, Martindale, all of whom will question the right of regulars to berths-by-inheritance.

Wranglers Work On Big Project

To Establish "Workshop" Recreational Center On Campus

One of the objectives of the Wranglers organization this quarter is the purchase of the construction house just north of the museum building to be converted into a lodge and meeting place. The construction house was built by the Frank Lytle Construction company, and was the headquarters of the contractors for the museum building for the past six months. The building can be purchased for a small sum and can very easily be changed into a rustic lodge.

Most of the fund for the purchase of the building has been raised by the Wranglers. If this objective is realized the building will be placed somewhere on the campus and will be remodeled by the boys of the manual training department as a class project. Members of the Wranglers will take care of the interior decoration and arrangement. The building would become a center for study of Scouting work, handicraft projects, and for recreation. It is hoped that a fire-place can be built into the proposed edifice.

The Wranglers are a group of girls interested in directing outdoor and recreational activities especially along lines of Girl Scouting. The organization is the only thing of its kind on the campus that gives definite training in the technique of recreational direction. It is sponsored by Miss Thelma Brummett, secretary to President J. A. Hill.

YOUR HOME BANKS INSTITUTIONS OF FRIENDLY SERVICE

The many banking institutions throughout the country in fulfilling their aim and constant desire to render every needed service to their customers during the past two or three years while business over the country generally has not been particularly prosperous, may take a pardonable pride in their achievements.

The banks of Canyon opened for business promptly on the date designated for them following the banking holiday; and in believing as we do, that we have succeeded in maintaining a friendly and dependable banking service for our customers, we do not take all the credit for the success achieved, but we assure you that we are mindful of the fact that we have had the co-operation and confidence of our depositors.

The Reorganization of Higher Education In Texas As Proposed in House Bill No. 471 by Anderson, et al

An address before the House Committee on Education, March 13, 1933, by J. A. Hill, President of The West Texas State Teachers College, Canyon, Texas.

The fact that this bill proposes to reorganize, reconstitute, and re-motivate higher education in Texas, abandoning well established principles and procedures in some respects to educational ideals of a half-century ago, and in others substituting new forms of organization that are basically contrary to the traditions and genius of American institutions leads one to believe that its authors must think that the existing set-up is a failure and that our vast expenditure of time, money, energy, and intelligence in the field of public higher education over a period of fifty years has been wasted. The thoroughgoingness of the proposal makes such interpretation of the bill inescapable.

The speaker does not believe that the facts warrant this assumption, nor that the bill, if enacted into law, would either promote the educational welfare of the State, or lighten the taxburden, but, on the other hand, would seriously impair our educational service, would eventually cost more money, would abandon certain well accepted educational practices, would strike fatally at the doctrine of equal educational opportunity for all, and would set up a theory of education contrary to American ideals and principles.

It is freely admitted that the institutions of higher learning in this state have many imperfections. They are a part of the human world about them and, as such, share the imperfections of that world. If they were perfect, they would hardly survive the social, political, economic, and moral perverseness of the age. Like the home, the government, and the church, they are subject to public pressure and yield to public demand. They are not a part of the democracy, if this is to mean at least partially true. Yet, it may be questioned whether any other branch of the public service functions more effectively or yields more for the tax-dollar than does higher education.

The seven teachers colleges were created and are maintained for the discharge of a definite and socially essential vocational responsibility—the preparation of teachers for all the schools of all the people. Because this is their field and because the teacher is the heart of the school these colleges are an integral part of the public school system. From the standpoint of public policy they are quite as important as are the common schools themselves, for upon their proper functioning depends the measurable measure, the quality of public education. This statement is borne out by the fact that a rapidly increasing percentage of teachers come from the teachers colleges. So important is the function which they perform that the public has seen fit to establish and maintain, at public expense, 273 such institutions in the United States at an expense of hundreds of millions of dollars, and giving essential professional training to hundreds of thousands of teachers annually. Their differentiation in function from other institutions of higher learning is easily understandable when we recall the rapid development of the science of education in recent years, alongside the development of other sciences. The educational world now acknowledges the existence of a vast body of specialized knowledge and techniques whose command is essential today to successful teaching, particularly at the lower levels.

The traditional Liberal Arts College has consistently opposed the advance of this professional and technical educational instrument. It has refused to admit, until forced to do so, that one could learn how to improve his skill in teaching. Some of us can well remember when students at the University of Texas admitted with shame-facedness that they were taking courses in the "Pee-doggy" department; and, I am told that even yet a sizeable remnant of the University faculty looks with condescension upon teacher-training. This is not surprising when one remembers that the Liberal Arts College is a very conservative institution—and probably rightly so. The teacher-training idea has had to fight its way to recognition. It has been opposed by tradition, by prejudice, by jealousy, and by the vested interests of the college world. For years, the teachers colleges were educational orphans, outside the fold of all college accrediting agencies and suffering from educational snobbery. In 1925 the Texas schools stormed the gates of the Southern Association and were admitted to educational respectability on the college level.

That the teachers colleges of Texas are performing well a distinctive and superior service is well attested by superintendents, school boards, and teachers in every part of the state. Contrary to certain printed statements of recent months, the facilities of these institutions for service in their specialized fields are vastly superior to those of other institutions. Their facilities are superior because of their experience in the public schools for which they prepare teachers and because of their specialized training for the teaching of teachers. Their plants are superior for teacher training purposes because they have been constructed with a definite professional objective in view and have been adapted to the purposes for which they were created. The atmosphere of the Teachers Colleges is surcharged with the idea of teaching, just as that of the Medical College is permeated with the idea of healing the sick. The definite vocational objective is held before all the students all the time. This factor bears fruit in purposeful effort to prepare for superior service in a chosen profession. It motivates endeavor, it intensifies effort, it clarifies ideals, it makes for longer and better service in the common schools, and tends to develop a real profession of teaching as against the use of the school as a by-path to law, medicine, insurance, or what-not.

That these institutions, through the work they do in preparing teachers, make considerable contribution to the cultural life of our people is rightly to be expected. That in doing this they duplicate results at other institutions is a fact which should be commended rather than condemned, for the public's appetite is none too keen for the intellectual and spiritual values of life. Teachers Colleges ought to be centers of culture, in addition to performing the technical function of placing in the hands of young teachers the skills and techniques of modern education; and, they ought not to be accused of duplicating the work of the liberal arts colleges if, in the discharge of their own function, they use some of the same tools and get some of the same results as characterize the work of these other institutions. But it cannot be reiterated too often that the thing that makes the teachers college distinctive is its specialized function; that it has adhered to this function consistently and is setting the pace today in educational progress; that while a certificated teacher is a by-product of other institutions of higher learning a qualified teacher is the major output of the teachers college; and that the other services rendered by the teachers college are in the nature of by-products and do not represent a social waste.

The fact is, each of our institutions of higher learning in Texas represents a type of educational endeavor and fulfills a distinct social need. When thoughtful consideration is given to their respective services one cannot escape the conviction that our state ought to be proud of its system of higher education. The University ranks among the twenty best state universities in America. The A. & M. College is recognized as one of a dozen best institutions of its kind in the country. C. I. A. has no superior among State colleges for women. Texas Technological College has made a marvelous beginning in seven short years. The College at Kingsville has not yet had a chance, but serves a great and growing territory and deserves an opportunity to function. The Teachers Colleges of Texas rank along side of those of Illinois, Missouri, Kentucky, Michigan, Kansas and California. In considering the complete reorganization of higher education let us remember that the foundations and superstructure of what we have, notable as it is in every field, represents the labors of men like Ross, Gov. Roberts, Presidents Prather, Houston, Mezes, Vinson, Splawn, Sutton, the Pritchetts, Bruce, Cousins, Cooper, Bizzell, Bralley, and hundreds of others of like kind whose heads were as clear and whose hearts were as true as are those of the best of us today.

In my judgment what this bill would do finds analogy in a recent incident which took place almost

Not Since War Has a President Worked At FDR's Record Pace

In his first few weeks in office

President Roosevelt must have set some kind of a record, for not since the hectic war days of 1917-18 have so many and crowded events greeted a chief executive in so short a span of time. And probably never before in the history of the country have so many momentous problems been dealt with in that period.

A banking crisis loomed even before the new president stepped into office. To handle this national emergency, President Roosevelt, in his inaugural address, revealed that he would ask for unprecedented presidential powers. Then, in the brisk, rapid-fire manner which has characterized his actions since March 4, the new chief executive began snapping out his orders. Almost simultaneously, he closed every U. S. bank for four days, declared an embargo on gold, and issued a call for a special session of the new Congress.

Leaving to William H. Woodin, Secretary of the Treasury, the details of caring for the banks during the holiday, the new president succeeded in pushing through the banking bill, gaining broad powers for himself and providing for the issuing of new currency. Several days later banks of the country, licensed by the Treasury, began to open in successive stages.

Immediately after the passage of the emergency banking act, President Roosevelt shot through to Congress another message, calling for balancing of the budget; and, an hour later, a bill giving him great powers in slashing veterans' compensations and federal salaries. This $500,000,000 economy bill the House passed at once. The next day was Sunday—a breathing spell for Congress. But not for the president. On this day he spoke to the nation, asking for full confidence in the re-opened banks.

A terse, 72-word message sent to Congress, demanding legalization of beer for revenue purposes, followed. While the House was passing this bill, Roosevelt began to draft farm and unemployment relief programs.

From Congress the next day came the cheering news that the Senate had passed the economy bill; and that the Senate Finance in the shadow of this capital. An humble West Texas citizen, early one morning, was passing a beautiful Austin lawn on which thrived a wonderful oak. He pondered its symmetry, its strength, and its enviable place in the landscape. At noon of the same day, as he retraced his steps past the old oak, his heart sank within him when he saw four negroes making stovewood out of the old tree which he had admired in the morning and which nature had taken a century or more to build. If we are not actually proposing to fell the educational tree we are certainly tampering with the roots and threatening its comely branches.

Finally, this bill, following certain fairly well-defined trends in government, economics, and education, would lead us directly away from the ideals and traditions of the American Republic. For example, it would place the control of higher education in the hands of one board, with authority to determine the whole educational policy of the state. Such control is unwise and undemocratic for the following reasons:

1. It would require so much time of the members of such board that they would be compelled to delegate their powers and functions to paid employees. Such employee or employees (the usual form is a chancellor) would necessarily exercise great power and the whole educational procedure would be set up and administered by one man, whose ideas and ideals would pre-determine the quality, President Franklin D. Roosevelt, whose accomplishments and dynamic energy since his inauguration have aroused the admiration of the country, is shown above in his study at the White House.

Committee had approved the beer bill, after adding wine of similar alcoholic content. Then, incidentally, and perhaps an indication of the growing confidence of business in a president who was getting things done, came the news of a record rise in stock and commodity market prices.

Beer, economy and farm relief occupied Congress the following day. After reducing the alcoholic content of 3.2, specified in the bill, to 3.05, the Senate passed the bill. At the same time the House was giving its final approval to the economy bill, and President Roosevelt was sending through another of his now-famed messages, requesting immediate action on a farm relief program. The president's measure to aid the farmers provided for taxes on the processing of certain commodities, and payments to farmers in the form of rentals for acreage withdrawn from cultivation.

kind, and amount of higher education. From the standpoint of sheer efficiency, this plan would probably be effective. If the people of this state wish to turn over their higher educational thinking and planning to one man, or even to a small group, they can no doubt have a more efficient system, but it will come at the expense of the principles of popular government and the educational opportunities of our youth.

2. A decentralized control diffuses interest in and information about higher education among larger groups of citizens and in a greater variety of sections of the state. It stimulates initiative, commands the intelligence and resourcefulness of many people, and gives necessary freedom to successful administration. As contrasted with the centralized form of organization it brings out the best in many rather than the worst in one. The world conducted an unsuccessful political experiment in Benevolent Despotism in the 18th century. Intelligent Texas citizens will not welcome such an educational experiment in the 20th century.

3. The waste in material resources under a decentralized system is inconsequential as compared with the waste in intellectual and spiritual resources under a centralized system. Efficiency in a mechanical sense, was never a bed-fellow of democracy. Better have a clumsy and even somewhat wasteful system under which government derives its just power from the consent of the governed than to have an efficient and economical system from which the soul of the people is absent. The virtue of democracy is to be found in the general diffusion of both opportunity and responsibility among the people. It makes constant appeal to both intelligence and character and thus enables the people both to create and to enjoy the higher values of life. The concentration of both authority and opportunity which this bill proposes is therefore inimical to the welfare of the people and inconsistent with the traditions and principles of republican government.

THE MODERN LAUREL WREATH

Little laddie, do not weep
When you're asked to go to sleep.
Like a soldier, run along
To your bed and grow up strong.
Little laddie, don't be rude
When you're asked to eat your food.

You must munch your spinach so
Ever stronger, you will grow.
If you do what you are told
You will grow up brave and bold
And when you reach Man's Estate
Hale and husky, strong and straight.

College deans will surely slip
You a football scholarship.
—Judge.

A Utah politician claims that prosperity would come out of that roundhouse if every person over 18 were compelled to spend half the money he possesses. What a break for the 5 and 10 stores!

Isn't it queer that when a man sows his wild oats he never makes anything but Cain?

In this day and age it is not so much loving your neighbor as it is keeping up with them.

Mrs. Inez Hinkle Sends Poem to Mrs. Franklin Roosevelt

Mrs. Inez Hinkle has a letter from the White House which she prizes very highly. The letter is written by Malvius L. Scheider, secretary of Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt in acknowledgement of the copy of a poem which was sent Mrs. Roosevelt by Mrs. Hinkle.

The poem follows:
THE BIG INAUGURAL PARADE
(Mrs. Inez Hinkle)

Dear Mr. President
And First Lady of the Land
I longed to be in the big parade
And join that happy band.

I sat in my room by the fireside
And listened over the radio
The National Broadcasting station
Gave us a wonderful show

The big inaugural party,
My, but wasn't it great
The day we got our president
Or the dear United States.

I'm glad you are our president
We've called you loud and long
And now we want to back you up
A hundred million strong.

We want to watch and work and pray
And be the kindly neighbor
That will help our president
While he for us does labor.

Let's fall on our knees as a nation
That we may find favor in God's sight
And pray he will guide the footsteps
Of our president a-ri-ght.

Necklines All Important This Spring

PROPER NECK TREATMENT, OR WISE CHOICE OF COLLAR DESIGNS, PERMITS WOMEN TO FLATTER THEMSELVES

BY HARRIET

NECKLINES are all important. And if the collars and necklines on your new spring clothes don't flatter you it's your own fault. You certainly have a wide enough variety from which to choose this year.

The mannish trend of fashion has given many tailored necklines to even the more feminine clothes. There are high, stiffened collars exactly like those of a man's shirt on many of the blouses to wear with spring suits. These have cuffs, fastened with links, which match the collars.

High collars with ends that extend and the ascot fashion are chic and very popular. These go particularly well with light-weight wool dresses and with prints for spring.

If tailored necklines are anathema to you remember that cowl necklines have their own place in the spring sun. These are most flattering to younger women.

The V neckline which graduates into a vestee or a surplus front closing is becoming to the older woman. Nothing makes the mature figure look younger than a tunic dress or gown with surplus front.

Scarfs which softly drape the neck, cross over and disappear under the front of the dress are often held together at the crossing with an ornate pin. This type of neckline was designed, primarily, to wear with light-weight spring woollens.

Plain, collarless V-necks look handsome on a woman with a lovely throat and add length to a too-short neck.

Latest fashions in evening clothes show many scarfs draped about neck and shoulders. One of the handsomest models shown at the recent Fashion Originators Guild of America style show was an orchid satin evening gown which had practically no back. However, the neckline in front was very high and a scarf was worn across it, spread backward over the shoulders and ended in back somewhere below the waistline.

Squared necklines which vie with the vogue for sailor clothes are worthy of consideration for the diminutive figure.

HAND-DRAWN wool in a lovely slate blue fashions this beautiful but simple tailored dress for spring.

Its neckline is a soft and flattering one. The white silk scarf, attached to the back and sides of the V-neck by basting, has a surplus of material. It crosses in front, is held together by a circular pin and disappears into the frock.

The under cuffs, also of white silk, are tightly buttoned up under the outer cuff of blue wool. The belt buckle is gun metal.

The dress if topped off with a trig little turban, narrow at the front, wide at the back, has two dainty flowers on the left side and a stiff little nose veil across the front. The silver fox scarf is worn cowl fashion and makes the costume not only excellent for street wear but dresses it up enough so that you can go to lunch or tea in it. The Mainbocher dress of navy blue silk crepe has a fascinating neckline. The dickey is yellow. A neat little bow of the yellow silk ties up over a stiffened front trimmed with Chinese motifs.

New Regulations April 1st Regard RFC Aid Funds

Members of the local committee handling the RFC relief funds in Randall county, state that they expect to receive new orders regulating the future distribution of this money sometime before April 1. New regulations will go into effect at that time.

Among the new regulations will be a limit of $10.00 per family per month. None of the money will be allowed for medicine or for medical aid, so advance information indicates.

The following statement has been issued by the committee:

"The sole idea of the committee has been to make the funds go as far as possible.

"Recently many objections have been made regarding restrictions imposed upon the expenditure of the county relief fund. The committee in charge realizes that they have made and will continue to make many mistakes. But we wish every one to understand clearly that the sole purpose of this fund is not to give people what they want but to keep people from suffering. To do this we must necessarily impose conditions irksome to ourselves, to the merchants of the town, and to those who receive the relief. The amount of money received for this purpose is not supposed to purchase anything more than the bare necessities of life. If some get more than this, others will get nothing at all. The policies of the committee here have been far more liberal than they have been elsewhere—more liberal than we will be able to keep them. Please do not ask for help unless you have to have it. You may cause somebody to go hungry, and don't come to the committee expecting cake when there is only money to buy corn-bread."

It has been pointed out that had this money not been sought thru the Chamber of Commerce, that there would have been just that much less for relief in Randall county.

IN THE WORLD OF SPORTS

Martin Picks Toppino, McCluskey, Spitz, Brown, Cunningham as America's Outstanding Track and Field Stars

BY PHILIP MARTIN

IT'S about time someone was giving those indoor track and field stars all-something-or-other recognition, so here goes for an All-America indoor track and field team.

After the present season of meets, which included the Millrose A. C. games, K. of C. events, N. Y. A. C. gatherings, National A. A. U. get-togethers, and I. C. 4-A classic, the following stars and school squads demonstrated to the writer class enough to warrant selection as peers in their events:

60-meter dash—Emmett Toppino, Loyola of the South.
70-yard high hurdles—Jack Keller, Ohio State.

440-yard dash—Ivan Fuqua, Indiana.

600-yard run—Karl Warner, Yale.

880-yard run—Charley Hornbostel, Indiana.

One-mile run—Glenn Cunningham, Kansas U.

Two-mile run—Joe McCluskey, Fordham.

3000-meter steeplechase—Joe McCluskey, Fordham.

Five-mile relay—U. of Pennsylvania.

Two-mile relay—Princeton U.

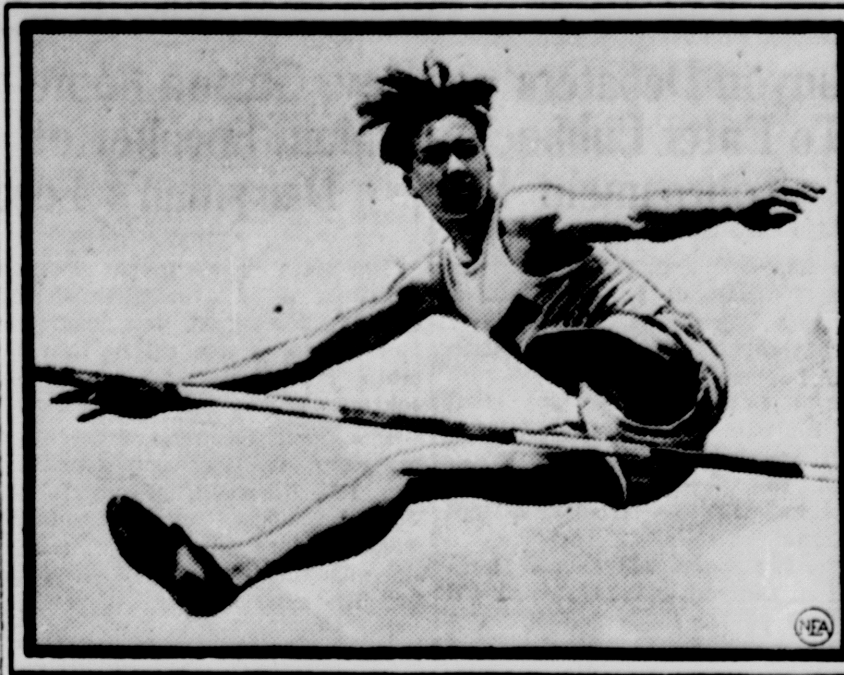

High jump—George Spitz, New York U.

Shot put—Leo Sexton, amateur.

Pole vault—Keith Brown, Yale.

PROBABLY the five most outstanding of this group of track and field stars are Toppino, McCluskey, Spitz, Brown and Cunningham.

The flash from New Orleans continued his brilliant career of last year on the board tracks by walking off with nearly every major event he entered, tying the record for the 60-meter distance time and again.

George Spitz, above, brilliant N. Y. U. high jumper, seems headed for a world's record this year.

True, Toppino was beaten by Ralph Metcalfe, Marquette Negro flash, in the National A. A. U. meet, but Ralph had to set a new world record of 6.7 seconds to do it, and it's doubtful if he could beat Emmett again over the same distance.

Toppino had been going for weeks on the hard boards, while Metcalfe was comparatively fresh, having taken part in only a few indoor meets.

"Shufflin" Joe McCluskey is truly the iron man of the distance events. In only one meet did Joe bend the head in defeat this season.

GEORGE SPITZ, New York University's brilliant high jumper, seems to be destined to establish a new world's record before he finishes up this year. George will take his jumping to the outdoor track before long, and you can look for some astonishing leaps from this gent who topped all the indoor honors during the past season.

Glenn Cunningham, fresh from the wilds of Kansas, journeyed east to take the measure of Gene Venzke, schoolboy mile world record holder of last year, in all but one race they competed in. The lame Kansan turned in some good times, but failed to establish a world mark.

Yale managed to turn out another pole vault phenom this year. He is Keith Brown, about whom you'll hear plenty more before the present vault records are much older. He's just about the best Yale ever had.

tables, more than 200 were in attendance. The banquet was served at 25 cents per plate in the interest of purchasing church hymnals. More than $50.00 was cleared.

Mrs. Pat Whittington and Mrs. J. O. Whittington of Longview arrived in Canyon Monday. Mrs. Pat Whittington will visit her parents, Mr. and Mrs. N. E. McIntire here, and Mrs. J. O. Whittington with friends in Amarillo.

C. E. Cheyne is visiting in the home of M. W. Gordy in Gewitt this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Scott Webster and daughters, Neita Fay and Zeita May from Hartley spent the weekend with Mr. and Mrs. P. H. Baber.

Rotary members were panned Tuesday at the weekly luncheon in a blackface act put on by Jeff Fowler. The entertainment was provided by Albert Terry, chairman of the Attendance Committee.

Irby Carruth assisted Mr. Fowler in the first part of the act. The second part was devoted to a negro sermon, and jokes at the expense of Rotary members.

Jeff Fowler has performed upon numerous occasions before various gatherings in the county with blackface stunts.

The birthday of Levi Cole was recognized.

President Oscar Gano commented upon the fact that there was a 100% attendance, with no guests.

Scene as Flood Hits Cincinnati, Ohio

This incident—a resident of Cincinnati, O., rescuing his furniture when flood waters began seeping into his house—was duplicated countless times when the Ohio river flooded and inundated Cincinnati, taking a property toll of more than $1,000,000. The flood, which was at its highest stage since 1927, rushed down toward the Mississippi river to menace the whole Mississippi Valley.

Dress to Suit Yourself and Your Job

TWO COSTUMES FINE FOR OFFICE WEAR ARE A SKIRT, BLOUSE AND JACKET ENSEMBLE, AND A DRESS-AND-JACKET AFFAIR

BY HARRIET

THE right clothes can help you hold your job. And the right clothes this year mean something that is practical and smart at the same time.

Silk suits are invaluable to the girl who works in an office. There are two types of these silk outfits: first, the skirt, blouse and jacket costume; and second, the sleeveless dress with matching jacket. During the cooler days of spring you keep the jacket on while you work and later, when the weather is hot, remove the jacket and there you are, looking cool as a lily in spite of the heat.

If you choose the type with the blouse be sure you have a couple of extra blouses. They should be of a lighter color than the skirt and coat and consequently will have to be laundered after each day's work. As a matter of fact, enough variation of the blouses of a costume will give you and the people with whom you work a feeling that you have more than just the one suit.

There are tailored blouses with mannish collars and cuffs for the days when you feel extra efficient, and soft, but plain ones for the other days when you are just a girl and not particularly a part of the machine which is business.

Printed dresses with short sleeves and plain colored jackets make a practical as well as attractive outfit for spring in the office.

There are various styles besides the silk suit. For instance you can choose a plain, tailored, double-breasted dress of a material that will stand much sitting down and still keep its shape and charm.

Material is of the utmost importance to a woman who must sit at a desk most of the time. No use getting flimsy things that will burst in the seams or wear out at the elbows in no time. There are sheer, cool materials that in spite of their light weight are noted for their durability. And rough, crinkly crepes are almost always a safe bet.

Get things that are easy to press and if you are limited to two or three costumes you had better get dark colors even though the lighter shades fascinate you more. Light colored clothes for the office worker are practical only when they are washable. If they have to be sent to the cleaner every few days you'll be certain to rue the day you turned from black, blue or brown to pastel colors.

TWO costumes that practically constitute a spring wardrobe for the office are a dark suit and a dress of a cheerful but practical

The three-piece suit of crinkled Acele crepe is nothing if not practical. Besides, the little jacket, buttoned down the front, with wide, comfortable sleeves hung from a yoke is as modish as can be. With this suit you can have any number of blouses. A blouse with a soft tie collar and mannish tailored cuffs makes for a chic appearance. This is an ideal outfit to wear to the office under your spring coat. Later on it will look equally nice on the street without a coat. Remove the jacket and short sleeved blouses will make it a fine costume to wear all summer at your desk. Have at least one checked gingham or striped dressmaker's shirt.

The dress is one of the smart, shirt waist models of Mataloy crepe. It is handsome in green, gold, gray or apricot. The double-breasted front is fastened with composition buttons. The wide belt strikes an interesting note.

Add these two dresses to your office wardrobe and you'll be perfectly certain that you will be smartly and adequately garbed all season long.

News in Canyon 25 Years Ago

(From the files of the Canyon City News, March 27, 1908)

A quorum of the Reunion executive committee got together Monday morning and transacted business as follows: J. C. Hunt was elected president, George A. Brandon, secretary, and Travis Shaw, treasurer. Aside from the officers named those present were C. P. Hutchings, J. D. Gamble and Geo. L. Abbott.

Frank Smith, T. H. Rowan and Brent C. Taylor have formed themselves into a land company. The two first named left for Kansas City last week and may not return until next excursion.

Carl Coffee, who has been working in and near Amarillo for some time, has come back to Canyon City and is now engaged with Sterling and Jim Coffee in carpenter work.

Tuesday evening a party of four: J. C. Hunt, Geo. L. Abbott, J. H. Hall and C. C. Doniphan left in an auto for Haskell. They intended making Lubbock Tuesday night, thence to Haskell and the sights there and attending to some business, returning here about next Tuesday.

The News is informed that John Hutson had several bulls at the Fort Worth stock show in charge of T. A. Dowlen.

According to the Hereford Brand, issue of last week, the contract has once again been let for the Panhandle Short Line—"to begin within 60 days," says the Brand.

With this issue (March 27, 1908) The News finishes its eleventh volume and next week will begin its twelfth year of usefulness as a Plains paper. Excepting one, the Hale County Herald, The News is the oldest newspaper on the Plains. The News has prospered. Five years ago, when the present owner (Geo. A. Brandon) took charge, the office equipment consisted mainly of a Washington hand press (now in the possession of the Panhandle-Plains Museum), an old worn out jobber and an assortment of type that had seen its best days. Hand and foot was the only power used and the issues of the paper were irregular. Not so now. A modern news cylinder and two C. and P. jobbers with power sufficient to run all at once, if necessary, new dress, in fact new everything to match the up-to-date press arrangement, is the present order of things. Few offices in the Panhandle are so well equipped for either newspaper or modern commercial printing as is The News office and none surpass it in either quality of work or punctuality—its printing, both paper and job work is always the best to be had, and, it's always done on time.

Civil War Twins Are 90

tured citizen. It is for this that the public school exists; and it is to the credit of this community that through our classrooms, libraries, laboratories, choruses, and bands are handed down the best fruits of our civilization to the children of the wealthy as well as to those of the poor.

However much Canyon may desire a good public school on behalf of all the children here, the town is really forced to maintain a school somewhat above the average in quality. As stated before, Canyon is a school town and depends upon a continual flow of young people into town. Many of these who are entering college move here along with parents, brothers, and sisters. A family of this type frequently places one son or daughter in college and others in the public school in preparation for college. In this case the parents are hardly less interested in the quality of the public school than in the college itself and are partly attracted to Canyon because Canyon does have a superior type of public school. Once we permit our public school to slip into the status of a third rate system, we shall cause many of these potential and very desirable additions to our citizenship to settle in other college towns where public school facilities would be better.

Let it be repeated that Canyon cannot even let the impression get abroad that anyone here has even seriously proposed reducing the efficiency and drawing power of our public school, for good schools attract the cream of the population to them.

In making these statements I am not unmindful of the financial conditions of the present. I agree that many economies are necessary. The Board of Education and the Administrative Staff of the Public School are keenly aware of this fact and have, and are now, making drastic economies with the thought always in mind of impairing the school efficiency as little as possible.

The school budget of this year was reduced more than twenty per cent under that of last year. The budget of next year will show a further reduction.

People not familiar with school affairs and who have not taken the time to inform themselves of the function of a good school in a community are sometimes hasty in criticizing and in demanding radical changes in school policies and personnel. These well-meaning people would destroy with one stroke what has taken years of thought and toil to construct. Some will propose the lopping off of positions, others suggest the replacing of married lady teachers by single ones, while others sometimes propose to reduce the salaries of teachers to almost the wage level of unskilled labor.

Of course, adjustments of various kinds must always be made.

But let us use discretion in such matters. The average layman knows little about what positions the school could afford to have abolished. We must remember too that the school does not exist in order to furnish anyone a job regardless of whether such one be married or single.

The best education for all the children is the prime consideration; hence, the best teachers should be in demand. Marriage or single blessedness has nothing to do with the matter, and "best teachers" must be paid. Surely the laborer is worthy of his hire in this field as in others.

As patrons and citizens we expect our teachers to have much more education than was formerly the case. Why at this time we want no one in our high school without a degree nor in the grades without a permanent certificate. Furthermore, we insist that these teachers keep abreast of the times by buying magazines, books, etc., by attending professional meetings; by going to summer school. These things are expensive and the last mentioned item, especially, has a tendency to increase in cost rather than come down. Then let us be considerate and leave the adjustment of such matters to the Board of Education, who are studying the problem constantly with all the facts in hand. The fact that they have managed the finances of the school so as to meet all obligations promptly to date and at the same time maintain an efficient school, should be enough to reassure any citizen that the Board can and will make necessary re-adjustments essential for the well-being of the school and community.

As a business man and taxpayer I realize that a good public school will necessarily mean more outlay for its support than might be the case if we should cut the school back to a starvation ration. However, fifty cents spent on a school of which all of us would be ashamed is a waste of funds. We would better spend a dollar on a school of which we would be proud and which would be a credit to our town and community. So far as I am concerned I am willing to contribute my share toward the maintenance of an efficient school. I feel that such outlay will in time come back to the community multiplied several times. Let us all resolve that none of Canyon's schools shall be seriously crippled.

In the election Saturday let us have every citizen's vote. In voting for school board members, leave all personal bias behind and vote for those persons who in your opinion will work most harmoniously and consequently for the good of the school and not be inclined to disrupt the whole organization by proposing radical measures at this time. Now as never before is the time for calm and unprejudiced judgment.

JUDGE IN MEETS

Services which W. T. is rendering to schools of the region this week-end include judging of Armstrong County Meet by Registrar D. A. Shirley, Miss Miltia Hill and Miss Novella Goodman; judging Parmer County meet by Dr. Harris M. Cook; judging Lipscomb County meet by Professor C. W. Batchelder, Tommie Montfort, Herschel Coffee and Mitchell Jones.

Practically every week-end finds a demand for some special service to the public schools, these trips enabling the resident faculty to keep in touch with conditions in the public schools to which teachers are furnished.

THE GREAT AMERICAN HOME

London Quartet In Pleasing Program
on Monday Night

The London String Quartet played a program of immaculate loveliness before an appreciative audience here Monday night. The Londoners had been here two years ago and those who listened to them then were equally delighted with their selections this time.

Beginning with Borodin's Quartet in D major, No. 2, the ensemble followed with Opus 18, No. 2 by Beethoven and closed the evening with the Brahms Quartet in C minor, Opus 51, No. 1.

Amateur and experienced musicians felt exactly as if they were hearing a single instrument. Such an effect comes only from perfect playing.

The quartette, the finest in the world, finds its greatest number of engagements in educational institutions at the present time. From Canyon it goes to the University of California where a series of six concerts, with seventeen Beethoven quartets composing them will be played. College and university students are realizing that an acquaintance with a composer, such as can be secured through such a "course" is as much a part of a college education as a series of lectures on some phase of literature or history or economics. The Londoners appeal to all music lovers and to college students especially because they are interested in life and the contribution of pleasure and understanding which fine music, intelligently listened to, can give.

John Pennington, Thomas Petre, William Primrose and C. Warwick Evans will find a hearty welcome whenever they can return to Canyon.
